

The National Commission on Military, National, and Public Service (NCoS) is seeking qualified individuals who are capable leaders, strategic thinkers, strong writers, passionate about service, and intensely interested in developing research-driven policy recommendations for the American people, the Congress, and the President. The NCoS was mandated by the National Defense Authorization Act for FY 2017 and is charged with reviewing the military selective service system (“the Draft”) as well as developing recommendations to increase the propensity of all Americans, particularly young people, to participate in military, national, and public service.

All positions are full-time federal government positions, with a term that will not extend beyond 2020 or the Commission’s disestablishment date. The Director of Research and Analysis (DRA) and the Director of Governmental and Public Engagement (DGPE) are currently accepting applications for multiple positions within the Research, Analysis and Writing (RAW) team and the Governmental and Public Engagement (GPE) team. The RAW team will report to the DRA, who is primarily responsible for the research, analysis, writing, and editing of the report containing the findings and recommendations of the Commission along with any interim reports directed by the Commission. The GPE team will report to the DGPE, who is primarily responsible for strategic communications, public affairs, governmental affairs, and building partnerships and relationships with non-profit and non-governmental organizations, academic institutions, the private sector, and the public at-large. All interested candidates should submit resumes to apply.ncos@gmail.com by January 5, 2018. RAW candidates should be prepared to submit a writing sample. Current open positions include:
